Dear Professor:

I am writing this letter upon the request from Xu Lantian. He is currently applying for the Ph.D program at your University. I highly recommend Xu Lantian without any hesitation.

I have known Lantian since 2019, when he was admitted as a Master of Computer Science candidate into our university. As the dean of the school and the leader of his research group, I directed his research and found him a promising youth radiating with intelligence and creativity. During his first year, he got a very good record in major courses and earned good scores, ranking in the top 10%.

Lantian and I have published one paper and two pending patents together. He also helped me write my new book about big data security and privacy protection. We often discuss problems and he always puts forward many constructive suggestions. He gets well with all the members in our lab. He is good at communication and can express his ideas clearly. I see an optimistic, highly independent, and easy-going character in Lantian, with highly unusual determination. He is not defeated by any difficulties. He believes that, with hard work, he can achieve anything he wants. I think his confidence in himself is well grounded in his track record. Because of his excellent performance, he won the honorary title of outstanding graduate student.

Judging by what I know of him, I think Lantian is fully qualified to pursue a doctoral degree in your program. Therefore, I recommend him with much enthusiasm and I shall greatly appreciate your favorable consideration for his application for admission.

Sincerely,

Guoren Wang
